No.

17) What attracted you to a judicial career?

It has been a life-long dream. I find joy in my life through serving others, and a judicial career is an opportunity to serve my community in a role that I believe I can do well. I also love the law and enjoy the challenge of trying to make the right decision in each case.

18) Briefly describe your philosophy of the judicial role, the qualities that are most important for the role, and the greatest challenges to the role.

A judge's role is to work hard to apply the law impartially, fairly, consistently, and with integrity, wisdom, and good judgment, in each and every case. This is also one of the greatest challenges, but one that I relish and that makes me look forward to each new case.

19) Briefly describe a case, or a legal issue on which you worked, of which you are particularly proud, or which is reflective of your legal ability, work ethic, judicial philosophy, or temperament.

I hope that all participants in my courtroom leave feeling that they have had a fair opportunity to be heard and to participate in the process. I had a juror in a civil jury trial who is a lawyer and arbitrator. After the case ended, he informed my staff that he respected the way in which I handled the jury trial. I really appreciated receiving the positive feedback, especially coming from someone who is familiar with our system of justice.

20) Briefly describe an issue, related to Oregon's justice system, that is of particular interest or concern to you, or that you have interest in working toward improving.

I am actively involved in the Multnomah County Justice Reinvestment Program, a collaborative effort between law enforcement, the courts, the defense bar, probation officers and other partners to assess criminal offenders early in the criminal process and provide a continuum of community-based services and sanctions. The goal is to simultaneously reduce recidivism, protect public safety, and reduce prison beds.

21) Briefly describe a legal figure (personal, fictional or historical), whom you admire and why.

John Adams. I read a biography and some other materials about his life and was impressed with his passion for the law and for the federal and state constitutions that he helped create. I was also impressed with his selfless, tireless, and challenging service on behalf of this nation. He made significant personal sacrifices for the benefit of future generations.

22) State any other information that you regard as pertinent to your candidacy.

My service as a judge has been very rewarding personally and professionally. I feel as though I have found my calling in life, and I look forward to serving our community for years to come.
