What is OLIO? Opportunities for Law in Oregon, or OLIO, is the Oregon State Bar’s recruitment and retention program for law students who can contribute to the bar’s historically or currently underrepresented membership; have experienced economic, social, or other barriers; have experienced discrimination or oppression; or can otherwise demonstrate a commitment to advancing the D&I Department’s mission.

Highlights from OLIO 2018

Top left to bottom right: Students join Oregon Women Lawyers (OWLS) leaders for team-building exercises; Special guest and OLIO founder Stella K. Shiroma Nakama (formerly Manabe), with friends/colleagues; Saturday Evening Judges’ Reception; Students “speed network” with attorneys at the Practice Area Spotlight workshop; Judge Steven Powers delivers the keynote at the Judges’ Reception; Law students at 2018 OLIO orientation.