

Serving Justice

A HISTORY OF THE OREGON STATE BAR

From its association beginnings in 1890 to the OSB of 2004, Serving Justice uncovers decades of bar history. In these pages you will read about the people who pioneered in Oregon's legal profession—both in the original organization and in its successor, the Oregon State Bar, established in 1935. Along the way you will meet such fascinating men and women as McCants Stewart, the state's first black lawyer; Mary Leonard, its first woman attorney; and Gus Solomon, a soon-to-be federal judge who was largely responsible for establishing legal aid in Oregon.
