With the proliferation of video surveillance, dash and body cams, smartphone recordings, and other digital evidence, it's crucial that attorneys understand forensic options to pursue for their clients. Examine actual investigations to gain strategies, including examples of evidence prepared for trial. Review the laws impacting audio and video evidence and the difference between states. Gain one extremely effective cross-examination technique using media and technology that few attorneys are using...yet.

Meet David Notowitz

An Emmy award-winning producer and video and audio evidence expert, David Notowitz is the founder of NCAVF, the National Center for Audio and Video Forensics. He has worked as a forensic audio and video expert assisting law enforcement, private detectives, insurance investigators, district attorneys, public defenders, and corporate attorneys across the country. His evidence analysis involves federal and state litigation for plaintiffs, prosecution, and defense cases. Some of Mr. Notowitz's largest corporate clients include Kroger, Target, Home Depot, PetSmart, and McDonald's. He is a speaker at national conferences and has given presentations for public defender offices, law firms, and local bar associations throughout California.
